NUMBER 29.

JULY 21, 1911, NORWAY, MAINE.

VOLUME XLII.

George E. Gibson, R. E. Clement, R. M. Packard, M. N. Packard, F. T. True, Don C. Seitz.

Recently Morrill N. Packard, Esq. of Baltimore, Md., formerly of Norway, discovered among his treasures a photograph of a group of Norway boys taken thirty-two years ago by the late J. U. P. Burnham. All have since left Norway and all are living. The group includes

George E. Gibson, one of the owners of Gibson's Grove, who is in the real estate and oil business at San Rafael, California. Richard E. Clement is Superintendent of Public Instruction at Elizabeth, New Jersey; Roscoe N. Packard is leader of the fifth Maryland Band of Baltimore, the finest musical organization of the South; Morrill N. Packard is an attorney at law in Baltimore and has been Assistant Judge of the Children's Court of that city; Frank T. True is City Treasurer of Council Bluffs, Iowa; Don C. Seitz is business manager of the World, New York

S. B. & Z. S. Prince's Successor in Town.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. I. Merchant and Mrs. Merchant's sister, Ella Boudette, came to Norway last week from Randolph, Vt. It will be remembered that Mr. Merchant is company with Ernest Sargent of Woodville, bought the dry goods business of S. B. & Z. S. Prince last spring. They are getting located in Norway and will make this their future home. The new proprietors take possession of the store the first week in August.

En-route here Mr. Merchant called at his boyhood home at Quebec, Vt. Mrs. Merchant and Miss Boudette met him at White River Junction and accompanied him to Woodville, N. H., and the next morning they came to Norway.

The Herald and News of Randolph, Vt., says: "During sixteen years in Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Merchant have formed many pleasant associations and friendships and will be greatly missed not only in the church, of which they were faithful and active members, but also in the community."

Norway welcomes them, and if it must lose from active business such old and tried firms as S. B. & Z. S. Prince and business like appearing successors.

Mr. and Mrs. Merchant have taken the rent in the Noyes drug store block, recently vacated by Mrs. Georgia Pride. While waiting for their goods they are stopping at the Beal's.

Before Mr. Gibbs left town he enjoyed a trip up the lake and an auto trip through Paris and Paris Hill, returning via of the Stock Farm.

Mrs. Joe Durban has a geranium in full bloom, which is somewhat of a curiosity plant. She has had the plant for the past three years and always when it blossomed the flowers were pink. It has been some little time since it has blossomed but a few weeks ago it sent forth three clusters of buds and upon opening, two of the clusters were pure white and the other one a beautiful variegated pink, and all on the same plant.

A wedding reception was given Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buck at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Buck, on the evening of June 30. Mr. and Mrs. Buck were the recipients of many useful and costly gifts from their many neighbors and friends. There were about 175 present at the reception, which was an enjoyable occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Buck have been active workers in the church, Mrs. Buck having been Lady Assistant Steward for the third year and elected for the third year. Mr. Buck has been Assistant Steward for two years and is also elected for the third year.

Noyes-Frost.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Methodist church, Sunday morning at 9:30, when in the presence of about 150 relatives and friends Gladys Mae Frost and Alton L. Noyes were united in marriage.

While the time honored wedding march was played by Ethel Wentworth, the bride and groom with their attendants entered the church by opposite doors, meeting at the altar.

The altar was prettily decorated with evergreen, cut flowers and potted plants. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. O. Wentworth, the double ring service being used.

The bride was gown in white and wore a bridal veil. She was given away by her eldest brother, Winslow A. Frost. Her attendants were her sister, Fannie E. Frost, maid of honor, with Hazel Bennett and Elizabeth Drew, bridesmaids.

Alfred G. Monk was best man. Leona Sloan and Myrtle Sootherby, niece of the bride, were ring bearers. Leon Dow, Cecil Brown, Wilfred Sootherby and Lowell Cleveland acted as ushers.

The following guests were from out of town, George Henson, Ruth and Master Ralph Sutherland of Cambridge, Mass.; Ethel Dow, West Paris; Mrs. F. E. Gurney and family, Hebron; Mr. and Mrs. Leon C. Dow, Waltham, Mass.; Mrs. Chas. Brackett, Harrison; Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Green, Otisfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Noyes left by automobile, Sunday morning for Harrison, where they will spend a week with Mr. Noyes' people. When they return to Norway they will make their home for the summer with the bride's mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Noyes were recipients of a large number of wedding gifts, including silver, linen and many other articles.

Lake Improvements.

Last summer Mel Sampson and Dr. B. F. Bradbury started a subscription, so to speak, to raise money to remove the stumps and rocks in the bog and lake that interfered with boating. During the early winter several were engaged to do the work but it was not wholly completed.

This summer Mr. Sampson and Dr. Bradbury have requested all owners of motor boats to contribute a dollar for this purpose. Any amount of money from any one who owns now boats or has been on the lake would be acceptable. It is thought if contributions come in well, another summer the lake will be free of these dangerous places.

This spring Mr. Sampson put flags and buoys over the bad places but on account of the logs and some of the boys it has been almost impossible to keep them up.

The following have arrived at Grand View and are enjoying a vacation: Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Stearns, Dorothy Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. La Rue Vredenburg of Boston, Mrs. and Mrs. Diehlstein of Washington, D. C., Mrs. Frank C. Hadley and son, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Wade of New York City, Chas. F. Schiberna of Philadelphia.

The Old Rangeley Place.

For years the native inhabitant, the hotel visitor or the camp owner may have seen in driving over the long, hilly road that lies between the town of Rangeley and Haines Landing a small story and a half house of dull red color annexed to a huge barn of silver gray.
If he inquired of one who knew he would be told that it was the old Rangeley Place and if nothing more were said would drive on, the only impression left on his mind being that of a shabby old farmhouse perched high above the lake among the hills.

That is, in truth, the state to which succeeding generations had reduced the one time mansion house of the old American squire of English birth to whom the town of Rangeley and the whole system of beautiful lakes owes its name.

From without, all is apparently the same, but within a great transformation is going on. One enters the entrance hall as is greeted by the spectacle of women and men in hunting pink riding to the hounds. Everything is pictured,
the trees, the hounds and even the fox.
The effect is such that several have asked if the paper were not on the walls
when the house was first built.

In the living room, the little Dutch curtains, the quaint old, straight backed chairs with their filled cushions of English chintz, the narrow two piece mirrors, all bring back the atmosphere of nearly a century ago.

Two of the chambers are likewise hung in English chintz and in one of them an old washstand of San Domingo mahogany charms the eye. In the dining room, chairs, such as those upon which our great grandfathers and grandmothers sat, may be seen.

In the great kitchen, the original floor, worn by many feet, is one of the notable features of the house. That and the floor of a chamber adjoining are made from the old, primeval planks of Maine.
It is held together by wooden pegs and if one goes down cellar one may yet see the rounded side of the logs.

Out in the old gray barn J. W. Ferguson Kennedy, an artist from Boston, has established his studio. His wife, Mrs.
Kennedy, who is a writer, is as much interested in the historical aspect of the place as he is in the beautiful country surrounding it.

Under this double ministrations of artistic and literary effort it is to be expected that this old spot will take on a new lease of life and a richer and fuller meaning be added to the woods.—[Maine

at South Paris, has returned to his home in Otisfield.

Money back says Noyes Drug Store
if Parisian Sage doesn't eradicate all dandruff, stop spitting hair, falling hair, scalp itch, and put life and lustre into the hair of any man, woman or child.

And Parisian Sage is so pleasant and refreshing. No cheap perfumery odor to carry around all day, no disagreeable concoction that disgusts the senses, but a daintily perfumed tonic that proves its goodness the first time you use it.
Baldness and faded hair are both caused by dandruff germs. Parisian Sage kills the germs and causes the hair to grow abundantly.

A Pleasant Summer Home.
Mrs. Olevia Pike is very pleasantly located this summer at her old home in Otisfield, where, as she terms it, she is "camping out." A visit to her home, however, gives the idea of anything but that. Her home is situated on the shore of Crooked River and is very pleasantly located. She has a large garden in which she enjoys digging.
She has a flock of chickens and keeps a pig. Mrs. Pike enjoys getting back to the old home—and no wonder.
Mrs. Chute, an elderly lady of over eighty years and an old neighbor, lives with Mrs. Pike as a companion and is well, surrounded by old friends and neighbors find the summer passes only too quickly.

What a time to raise the price of coal!

Feeding the Farm Hand.

Almost any farmer will tell you that the boarding of farm hands is a growing more and more of a problem every year.
The better the class of workmen found on a farm the more particular will they be about their board. On farms where a considerable number of men are employed the foreman's wife usually boards them herself, and I have always felt that she has one of the most difficult jobs on the whole place.

Take, for instance, a typical lot of say, three or four hired men, all single.
One man complains about eggs, another does not like porridge, another could live on hot cakes and so on. She must try to please them all or there is sure to be a kick very soon, and on the first excuse the man who kicks will either leave or be roasted. After a while the woman gets sick and tired of it and both she and her husband leave.

In a great many cases she gets fair board money, but when you consider the hours that such a woman has to work—for she must be up first thing in the morning and remain up till the last at night—and the drudgery connected with dishwashing, bread-making, bed-making and cleaning, not to mention the men's washing and mending, it seems hardly strange that she gets discouraged.
In many cases the farmer's wife herself undertakes the work, and I hope that you farmers will try to remember how hard it is for your wives to stand over the roasting stove for the better part of the day and do your best to make every case it is the farmer's wife who persuades her husband to sell out and move to town, and it is not difficult to understand why she does it.

The situation today is just this: You will never keep your farm hands unless you feed and house them well. Also it is a great disadvantage to be constantly getting new men, when you have cattle and horses to be cared for and when each new man must be taught your way of working. My suggestion is this: Let every farmer who keeps one man the year round build a small, comfortable cottage a little way removed from the farm.

A married man can then be hired, on the understanding that his wife will have to board one or two extra men in the summer at so much a week. If the farm is larger and as many as three men are employed the year round, build three cottages and let each man's wife board one or two extra men in the summer. This plan permits the women to attend to their housework and her family without making slaves of themselves. If foreigners are employed the married man boarding them should be of the same nationality.

As a general rule, a married man is more liable to settle and remain on the farm than a young single man who has no encumbrances and keeps moving from job to job as he feels inclined. If you get a good married man make him comfortable and don't ask his wife to do too much and you will keep him for years.
Many farmers may ask where such a man is to be got. I tell you there are hundreds of them who have drifted to the cities and are only waiting for the opportunity to get situations where their wives will not have to be in harness fourteen and fifteen hours a day. The same thing happened in Scotland. Formerly when the farmers' wives had to help make butter and milk and do all the housework and migrate to the cities.
Today, when so many thousands of the young farm hands are emigrating, the farmers are bettering conditions and the former servants are leaving town and returning to the country.

It is surely most apt to a farmer's peace of mind to know that he has in his employ a man who wants to stay and grow up with the place. I know of some farmers who have instituted the custom of giving each year to the man who has proved himself the most honest and reliable a small bonus of the profits. One farmer told me that he found the small bonus
was one of his best investments.—[Country

WEST PARIS.

Momentary Insanity.

The community was shocked when compelled to believe that Frank E. Berry, a well known and respected citizen, had passed away. A few days ago he received a serious injury of the spine in one of the vertebrae a little below the base of the brain, caused by a fall.

He was recovering nicely but still suffered a great deal from the effects of the injury and neuritis, which made him discouraged and despondent.

Naturally an energetic, hard working man he was impatient with his recovery and thinking, as only he could with brain affected by the nature of the injury, that he never would be good for anything more, was seized with a momentary insanity, and after taking a dose of Paris Green hurried to the river and threw himself in, there to drown.

The two brothers, together with their sister Ella, have for several years carried on the farm and cared for the declining years of their parents, George and Mary Marshall Berry. Their father died about a year ago and the mother two or three years before.

Frank was a very genial, happy dispositioned man, naturally and universally liked. His friends were all who knew him.

He was one of a large family of children and the mourning brothers and sisters are: G. Will Berry, Edwin R. Berry and Fred of West Paris; Hiram of South Paris; Cynthia, wife of A. J. Abbott of West Paris; Eliza, wife of John Casley of Farmington; Ella Z. and Clara Berry of West Paris.

The funeral was held at his late home, Tuesday, at 2 p. m. Rev. J. W. Raymond officiated. He took for his subject "The Helper who helped him." The flowers were many and beautiful, which showed the amount of sympathy tendered to the family in their great grief.

Althea Page Logan.

The remains of Althea Page, wife of Fred Logan, was brought here for burial last Saturday afternoon, from her late home in Portland. Only two or three weeks before she had been here for several weeks' visit with her aunt and uncle after an attack of pneumonia.

For the most part, she had been restored to health and upon her return to Portland was stricken with typhoid fever and was sick only one week.

She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Page of Woodstock.

While on a small child she went to make her home with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. F. Dunham, who cared for her until her marriage.

Mrs. Logan was born May 16, 1892, and is survived by a husband and a small child, and a brother, Harry Page.

The funeral was held at the home, Saturday forenoon, Rev. Seth Benson, who married them, offered prayer at the cemetery on their arrival here. The pall bearers were young men from Portland.

When to Water.

If people who water their lawns during the heat of the day would just stop and think that it seldom rains when the sun shines and govern themselves accordingly they would have much better lawns than is now the case. There are a good many lawns here these days, which are not all due to neglect. The hose should be used before or after the heat of the day and it is better not to use it at all than to use it between seven in the morning and five at night.

J. E. Pearson of Buckfield is building a circular barn, the only one of the kind in this State. The site is in the middle of the building and forms a support for the center of the roof. The tie-rods are on the outside the stock facing inward.

It is thought the house will be ready for occupancy before snow flies.

A nearby spring was of great help in arresting the spread of the flames and confining the fire to a limited area.

Summer guests are fast arriving and the cottages on Lake Christopher are all occupied. With a good hotel Bryant Pond could easily become one of the leading summer resorts in this section of Maine. If hotels can be made to pay in Maine, if hotels can be made to pay in Maine, if hotels can be made to pay in Maine, the conditions are not so favorable, one could be made to pay here where the advantages for summer guests are ideal.

Instead of sleeping and mourning over the fact that we have no hotel, it is up to us to wake up and see what can be done. All of us that have no faith in the future of our town had better move to other towns as soon as possible and those of us that do believe need to stop sleeping and wake up. We feel sure that the majority of our citizens will wake up and the next ten years be full of prosperity and progress for Bryant Pond and the good old town of Woodstock.

The Miserable Girl.

Every mother who allows her daughter to grow up sentimental is unfitting that daughter to fight her battle against the world.

The world is cruel. It preys upon the impracticable above all, those who read their future in the rainbow and who feed their minds upon novels ending, "And they lived happily ever after."

Thousands of girls imbibe false ideas of marriage and of their responsibilities by novels which depict the struggles of getting a husband and then talk as if with the wedding bells all effort and all trouble ceased.

Would that it did! But, as many a bride has learned to her sorrow, the wedding has merely marked an epoch, a fresh struggle of new and more poignant endeavor or situations wholly foreign to the inexperienced girl and requiring common sense, not sentiment.

It is not the romantic girl whose illusions have been left her, "Oh, mother, why didn't you tell me the truth about the world, make me more practical!" is the cry of more than one girl when it is too late.

The best gift any mother can make her daughter is wisdom. She can give her a clear insight into life, make her discriminate between worth while qualities and worthless ones and teach her to tell almost at first glance the man who is a waster and a heartbreaker. The girl who is not swayed wholly by her heart and her imagination is the happiest one in the world, because she builds on the sure foundation of common sense and good principle.

Love is the greatest lure, the greatest heartbreaker, the greatest soul and mind destroyer there is unless it is backed by sterling qualities and by unselfishness. All love looks alike to the girl whose parents have allowed her to remain romantic and visionary. It is only the wise, sensible brought up, clear headed girl who knows how to pick out the real thing. Charming from the crowd of pretenders.

LYNCHVILLE.

Otis Cobb and Fred McKee are helping Eugene McKee with his hay.

Lilla McAllister called on her cousin, Thankful Adams, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnham McKee visited her sister, Mrs. Loren McKee, Sunday.

The thunder shower was quite heavy here Saturday evening but the people don't think there was enough rain to put out the fire on Rattlesnake mountain.

Ruth McAllister of Skowhegan is visiting relatives in this place and will go to Norway to see her father before returning home. Miss McAllister and Thankful Adams have visited their aunt, Mrs. E.H. McAllister.

Now It Is the Spruce.

The deadly insect which destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of hemlock and spruce 30 years ago has now attacked Maine's most valuable timber asset, the spruce of the big North woods. The spruce of this pest is the sawfly. It lodges on the edge of a big spruce growth. The ravages of the sawfly result chiefly, not from its feeding, but from the preparations of the female in securing her eggs.

Similar in this respect to the so-called "seventeen year locust" or periodical cicada, which this year is working great havoc in orchards and nurseries in many states outside of New England, the female sawfly is provided with an ovipositor, or egg-laying organ, containing two saw like instruments.

With this ovipositor the fly pierces the twigs of a tree and deposits her eggs in the slit thus made. Where the insects are numerous this wounding of the tree is frequently fatal to the tree. As the host advances it leaves in its wake a broad lane of devastation. The trees have every appearance of having been swept by fire.

After one or two blizzards of this first heavy wind. The spruce has become so valuable of late years that the big pulp companies are greatly alarmed and have called upon the Department of Agriculture of Maine for help.

Young Knowledge Seekers.

"The telephone habit has a strong grip on us," said a clergyman, "and its influence on our vocabulary, our comparisons and our lines of thought are quite remarkable. I had an amusing instance of this just this very thing the other Sunday afternoon. I was going over with my children the various statements in the Lord's Prayer. When I'd finished my oldest boy asked:

"What's amen mean, father?"

"I hesitated to get some easy answer that they'd remember, when the youngest little chap spoke up and said:

"Why, amen's just 'ring off,' isn't it, father?"

"Then as I suppose I looked some what amused and shocked at this interpretation he added:

"Amen's just more respectful 'cause you're talking to God, but it means ring off."

To Keep Ice In a Sick Room.

Unless one has a nursery refrigerator the best way to keep ice in a sick room is to take a large bowl and tie a thick piece of flannel or cheesecloth folded four or five times over the top of the bowl so that it resembles a drumhead. Lay the ice in one large lump on this cloth, and cover it with another piece of flannel or with a folded newspaper. On a hot night the ice can be kept in this way for 10 hours. The rationale of it is that the ice drips and does not lie in the water.

You are liable to an attack of some form of Bowel Complaint and should provide yourself with the best known Remedy. DR. J. C. NOLDS' BALSAEM. Sold by Noyes Drug Store.

The Boy Scouts.

Many sections in Maine are forming a local troop of Boy Scouts of America. This fine organization is open to all boys between the ages of twelve and eighteen, who pass the required examination in scout law, history of the American flag, and the tying of standard knots. Before one can be promoted, he must show increasing hard tests in thrift, athletic ability, keenness of vision, quickness of perception, skill in camp and woodcraft, first aid to the injured, signaling and allied subjects.

We are informed that the First National Scout Council, at Rochester, N. Y., desire a lady of good character and reports and are well rated in the commercial reports and state that they have one thousand acres in growing stock. Any one out of employment would do well to write them at once and would close a copy of this notice.

An Ohio Letter.

Fairport Harbor, Ohio, July 15, '11.

DEAR EDITOR:—As "Time is not money to me," and is hanging rather heavy on my hands just now, I will devote a few hours on this hot and sultry day to the task of writing about this part of the Buckeye state for you as usual and insertion in the ADVERTISER.

About the first of March the "ministers," Mr. and Mrs. Williams received a call from the Congregational church at Fairport, and thinking it a desirable location for their united work accepted the call and that is why I am spending my sixth consecutive summer vacation at Fairport instead of East Claridon, Ohio.

Fairport Harbor is one of the finest on Lake Erie. It is 33 miles from Cleveland and three from Painesville on the Lake Shore railroad, with which it is connected by a fine electric road. It is the terminus of the Youngstown-Painesville branch of the B. O. railroad, over which all the year round long trains of ore cars are being hauled from the great iron mines here to Pittsburgh and other great iron manufacturing cities. It is said that a million tons of iron ore are landed on the docks of Fairport each season during the open season for lake navigation. The boats are long iron, and they bring as high as 10 thousand tons of ore at a single load. I am told that in the beginning of the iron ore shipments many years ago that wheelbarrows were used to unload the boats, and load the cars by this same primitive method.

Today the Steel Trust has control of this great industry, and the facilities for unloading are such that a ten thousand ton load can be unloaded in from six to eight hours. There are 20 great unloading cranes, which are moved back and forth along the track, each with a great iron scoop holding from two to three tons of ore, and three ships can be unloaded at a time. They also have a fast way of unloading coal from the cars. A gigantic steel machine elevates the car full of coal, carries it over the ship, lowers it into position, turns it over and empties the entire load on the ship's deck or in the hold.

The first settlement in Fairport was made 30 years ago by settlers from the New England states. It has had many ups and downs. Its prospects now are very bright. A million dollar soda ash plant was begun early in the spring, which will be completed in the fall, which will give steady employment all the year round to 300 men, who with their families will add largely to the population of the village. The soda ash is used in the manufacture of glass and from salt, lime and water. The salt is pumped from very deep wells on the place. The limestone comes from an island in the lake, and the water is furnished in unlimited quantities from the lake.

Fishing is also another important industry for the town. All through the ice free season, very early in the morning, a large number of power launches go out to the fishing grounds three to ten miles out in the lake, where long spears which are run down through the shallow water and driven into the sand and mud at the bottom, to which long nets are attached. The fishermen gather in the fish, sometimes tons to a single spear, reset their nets and return to the shore, where the fish are disemboweled, packed in ice in barrels and boxes and shipped to the cold storage houses in Cleveland and other nearby cities. The local paper reported early in the spring that from three to six car loads of fresh fish were being daily shipped from Fairport.

The population of Fairport is about 2,300 of which 1,400 are Finns, about 400 Americans and the balance mostly Hungarians. They are moral, temperate citizens. They have two Lutheran churches and a large hall which they have named Temperance Hall. A few years ago there were 15 saloons in town and it was unsafe for a person to be out after dark. A year or two ago the Finns voted the town dry and in the nearly two months since I came here I have not seen a drunken person or the least signs of rowdiness.

The village is building a $80,000 schoolhouse, has water works, sewer system, electric lights, a fine park and hourly service on the electric line, and often on special occasions. Fairport is an ideal spot for a summer home. It stands on a plateau at least eighty feet above the lake and never has a fine, sandy beach and when the new sanitary government breakwater now being built is finished will be protected from lake storms. It is a fisherman's paradise, and all the year around successful fishing is enjoyed by the fisherman, from the pier breakwater, in boats, and in the winter through holes cut in the ice.

The hot water just closed did not pass away, and for nearly two weeks the heat day and night was almost unbearable. Showers the first of the week broke the torrid heat and since then the weather has been fine. All over the middle West it was very dry all last fall, with but little moisture in the winter, and but a little rain fell in the spring to the last of June, and it is a wonder that the crops were not all burned up by the great heat and the hot winds in the last two weeks of June and the first two weeks of July.

A friend living at Hurley, S. D., writes me in part as follows, under date of July 9th:—"We have been having the most dreadful spell of weather imaginable for about three weeks, and it is a mystery how things have stood up so well as they have. Mercury from 102 to 107 day after day, and the wind blowing constantly both night and day. Two weeks ago tonight we had a fine rain, more than an inch and it came so slowly that not a drop was wasted. The next shower and another the 8d of July, but on account of the heat things have nearly burned up. But last night we had a shower, from one and one-half to two inches and all so gently that it was too late to help the corn, but I do not think so. I think we shall get a fair corn crop, though not so good as we had promise of a month ago. The oat crop is nearest to a failure since '94, still there are some good pieces. Wheat is much better than oats. The earth has been fairly moist all the time on the corn ground but the air was so hot and dry. Helen Andrews is here from Westinghouse (a town about one hundred miles west of Hurley). She says they are working hard to get the wheat up out there. In fact it is so over a greater part of the state. Here in the southeast part of the state we are favored as usual."

Home grown fruits here in Ohio seem to be plentiful. Strawberries, raspberries and tamar cherries were on sale in the stores, and from farmers' wagons at from seven to ten cents a quart. The next in order will be blackberries, peaches, pears, grapes and apples, for which this part of Ohio along the shore of Lake Erie is noted.

Soon after coming here, as it was almost impossible to rent a house, Mr. Williams bought a nice seven room house, all modern except there was no bath, in order to help improve the new home and get much needed exercise, went to work by the wheelbarrow route, and dug a nice large cellar. I finished my job a week ago and am now resting with a fishing trip occasionally sandwiched in between. I have no big fish stories to tell but have kept the family table well supplied with fish, mostly small pike. My largest catch was a two-pound sheep-head.

About the 55th I expect to start on my sixth trip to Maine, to meet once more the few old friends still living there, view the grand old mountains, the lovely valleys, the silvery waters of Lake Umbagog, the old fishing hole and a thousand other sights and scenes that were dear to me in my childhood's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heald live at Madison, Wis., not Fairport, Ohio, as reported in the Fryeburg items of the Advertiser a few weeks ago.

Only a few weeks ago the Painesville, Ohio Daily Telegraph and a Republican published nearly a column article written by B. W. McKee of West Fryeburg, Maine, (with his picture) on "Shall Farmers Enter Politics." As Mr. McKee was an old schoolmate of mine I feel quite proud of the fact, and am glad to see him so highly honored.

Yours Truly, JOSEPH ANDREWS.

Nature's Funny Way.

Sells Us Cold Brick After Gold Brick.
Without Changing Pattern.

Nature has the funniest way of making monkeys of us mortals. She certainly must enjoy seeing us halt to death and seeing how easily it can be done. She sells us precisely the same pattern of gold brick every few weeks in the course of every year.

Last year, however, just to show that she wasn't confined to the old routine of scares, she rung in a comet with a perfectly good cyanogen tail. She induced a few highbrows to speculate on the poisonousness of that tail and the probable results it should be of a certain degree of density. Nature knew our density, so the only speculation was as to that of the comet's appearance.

Well, we died, all of us, in anticipation. The weaker, franker ones die the most noticeably and openly. The rest of us died in secret. But we all died. Every one of us speculated a little on how we would seem to be wiped out on one playful puff of purple poison.

Then the comet went by. Nobody would have known it if public attention had not been called to it, and we went right on living!

Now as the summer is going forward we are starting in for our usual number of deaths by universal and long sustained droughts. Of course the last one which threatened us so seriously is broken, but before we get the rain we are faced with the question, "Why continue?" The drought we have on hand at the time is the only one of the lot that hasn't been broken. That's the only way it differs from the others.

The alarmists get really worked up over such one. I suppose there has not been a summer in the last several thousand years when somebody didn't foresee a drought that would put an end to the race. I apprehend that away back in Noah's ark they saw droughts coming. Even Noah himself probably took on a copper skin and wiped the perspiration from his brow and said:—

"Well, this is the time it's got us. My father often said the rains had been of the country, and I thought he was foolish. Also my father was fooled for it rained afterward. But this time, well, it looks bad, that's all."

Noah knew there wasn't ever going to be any more rain. Then what did he do? Didn't he have the soaking of his life, just for that?

Now, I have noticed—and maybe you have noticed, too—that every drought ends with a rain. Did you ever know one to end any other way?

Opera Pupils.
Harrison Has Them from All over the Country.

That Frederick E. Bristol of New York City, who is at the head of the vocal department of the Royal Opera school in Coburg, Germany, is an exceedingly popular, as well as efficient instructor, is shown by the fact that a large party of pupils who were to have sailed May 16 last via the Holland-American line to attend the summer term, and were deterred by the serious illness of Mr. Bristol's daughter, have come to Harrison with him and are receiving instruction there.

Miss Bristol's illness was such that her father deemed it inadvisable to leave her for three months this season, and after looking about Maine for eight days last spring in order to find a suitable place to spend the summer he came to Harrison and as a result decided that it was an ideal location.

The pupils who were to have gone to Europe wished to follow him and now Harrison has a whole lot of fine singers as guests. Two concerts are to be given in Lakeside Grange hall, the proceeds to go to purchase a town clock. The first will take place the first week in August and the second early in September when the school closes.

Poland Campmeeting.

Brooks of Madison, who will act as superintendent of the Poland Campmeeting, which opens August 3, has planned a program of unusual interest and there will be several pulpits orators of National reputation. King and Miss Fasset of the Des Moines home as speakers. The Temperance Sunday will be observed on August 6th, with Rev. E. Corbett of Providence, R. I., and J. R. Libby of Portland, August 9th will be observed as Epworth League Day.

Among the clergymen who will be present and speak are: Bishop J. W. Holden, Revs. G. D. Holmes, Felix Powell, B. C. Wentworth, H. A. McGlaughlin, F. A. Leitch, D. C. S. Cummings, D. J. Joselyn, L. A. Bean and T. N. Kewley. The music will be under the direction of Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Brooks of Mechanic Falls.

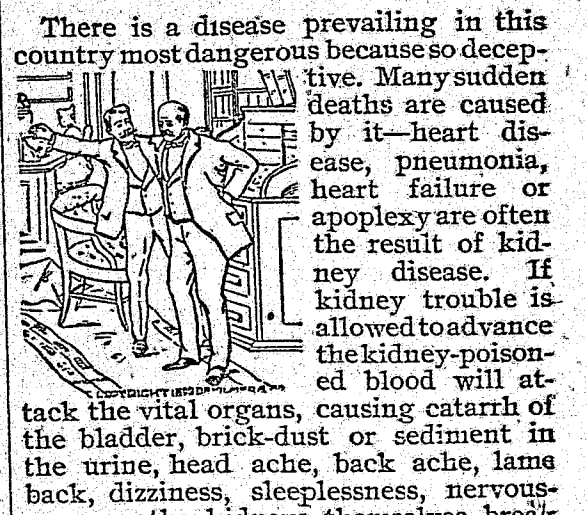

The children's meetings will be in charge of Mrs. C. A. Brooks of Madison, assisted by Agnes Vose, a graduate of the National Deaconess Training school in Washington, D. C.

One Hundred Years Ago.
Folks who declare that the recent hot waves were the hottest ever, may be interested to know that in July 1811, there was a far more prolonged and trying hot wave in New England. The thermometers did not drop below 95 degrees on sixteen of the thirty-one days of the month, and were never below 90 in the shade any day. On the fourth of July, 1811, the thermometers registered 107 in the shade. The almanac as a rule predicted this summer's heat spell, but it remains to be seen whether there is any truth in their prediction that the drought will continue until September.

Fasting of the Broom.
There is no one among the many household utensils which has been called into use more frequently than the broom. It is the most faithful servant of the household, made from hemlock boughs in the days of the early settlers to the finely finished sweepers made of broom corn today, it has played an important part in household economies. Its sovereign authority was first attacked by the advent of the carpet sweeper, says an exchange. The new electrical-driven sweeper does the work more quickly, thoroughly and raises no dust. As a consequence of the increased use of special cleaners the demand for the broom is falling off. Its days for the present are numbered, though it for some time will be used to a limited degree in the rural sections.

For the first time we feel like thanking God we are no fatter.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

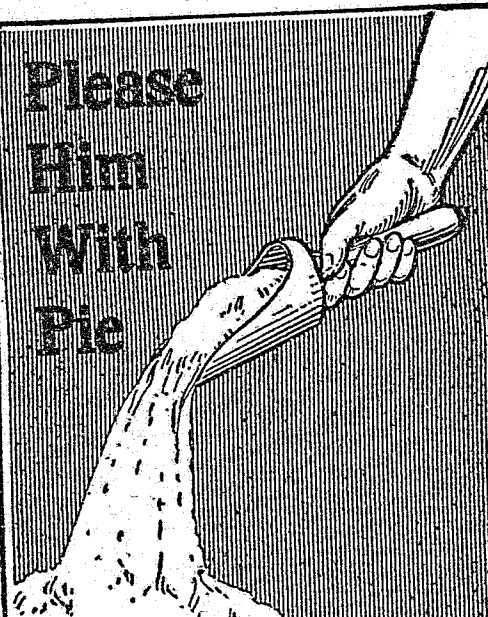

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone. Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root. If you do you will be disappointed.

Mr. Davies was 51 years of age and leaves a wife and one daughter, and a brother in Portland.
In company with Dr. Ralph E. Gallinger of Concord, N. H., Mr. Davies had been for a ride in Dr. Gallinger's car. OTISFIELD.

Mrs. Sarah Mann Maxfield.
At Edes Falls July 8, Sarah Mann, wife of Josiah Maxfield, passed away very suddenly with heart trouble. She was sick only a short time. She was always pleasant and agreeable and kind to all, ever ready to help any one in trouble. She will be sadly missed by her family and a large circle of friends. Her age was sixty-five years and three days.

She leaves a husband and five children, two sons and three daughters, Nathan L., of Boston; J. Henry of Naples; Mrs. E. A. Harriman of Montello, Mass.; George Lovett of Allston, Mass., and Mrs. Asa Folsom of Naples. She leaves three brothers and one sister, Daniel Mann of Casco, Me.; of North Windham, George of Naples and Mrs. Horace Frost of California.

The funeral was at her late residence July 9, conducted by Rev. Mr. McKenney of Bridgton, who spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family.

The choir from Harrison sang two pieces, "Nearer my God and Lead kindly light." The flowers were many and beautiful:
Crescent, Wife—Huband, Pillow, Mother—Children.
Wreath—Son, Nathan L.
Wreath—Brother Amos Mann and family.
Wreath—Nieces, Leah, Gladys and Hazel Robinson.
